| The proposed project would install six monitoring wells on Route 101 between post miles (PM) 14.4 and 15.6 in Del Norte County. The purpose of the project is to collect groundwater data needed to model potential dewatering programs and their impacts on landslide stabilization efforts as part of the preliminary geotechnical exploration for the Last Chance Grade Project. Work would include drilling percussion-rotary or sonic borings into existing gravel and paved shoulders to create the holes for the proposed monitoring wells. Each hole would be eight-inches in diameter and 300 feet deep. Standpipe monitoring wells would be installed in each of the borings. Holes designated to receive a monitoring well would first be flushed with clean water, a slotted PVC or steel stand-pipe installed and the annular space filled with clean #8 sand sealed with bentonite plugs to prevent infiltration of surface water, or migration of water between aquifers. Traffic-proof well covers would be installed in the road surface with quick setting Portland cement to allow access for monitoring. All work would occur within State Right of Way. Biological, cultural, air and noise reviews have been completed.
